CUES® Announces its 2013 Supplier of the Year

MADISON, Wis.—The Credit Union Executives Society is proud to honor this year's Supplier of the Year award winner at CEO/Executive Team Network™, Nov. 3-6, in San Diego.

This year's recipient, DDJ Myers, Ltd., Phoenix, was founded in 1989. Employing 10 people solely dedicated to the credit union industry, they serve as a thought and best practice leader in strategic organization, leadership development, and more. DDJ Myers has supported and sustained high performing credit unions with services including: aligning talent with an organization's strategy and culture needs; teaching clients how to build on untapped strengths and leverage their organization's best talents; and creating rich and diverse programs for leadership development and transformative change.

DDJ Myers is passionate about working with credit unions and the great potential of the industry to ensure its sustainability and performance. However, community service is important to the company and its employees. Their intention is to give away 10% of their time a year to schools, credit unions who need extra support, developing leaders and supporting women in transformative change.

To be eligible to receive the CUES Supplier of the Year award, companies must be CUES Supplier members for at least one year. Nominees are judged on their contributions and achievements in the credit union industry, the benefits of their product or service to the movement and their role in the community. Winners receive a company profile in a CUES publication, a complimentary full-page, four-color advertisement in Credit Union Management™ magazine and a crystal trophy.
