

Advancing Leadership Success

Darling Consulting Group
Senior Asset Liability Analyst
Boston, MA Area

Use your asset/liability and treasury management talents and learn from a team of experts. You will help clients identify, measure, monitor and control interest rate risk, manage their balance sheet, assess the process for strengths and weaknesses, and provide recommendations to management to enhance or improve the modeling processes and the decision-making effectiveness of the ALCO. This role manages significant projects in asset/liability management, and interest rate risk management, funding and liquidity to support better decision making in these critical banking functions.

Darling Consulting Group is a leading ALM consulting group with unmatched expertise and depth of knowledge in the areas of financial management, investments and education for bank executives and board members. You will be exposed to best practices and varied financial statements that will support your short-term growth and long-term career.

Experience with asset/liability modeling (A/LM), financial institution balance sheets, strong analytical abilities and documentation experience is required. A degree in Finance, Accounting, or related field is required. Familiarity and experience with credit and/or regulatory stress testing is a plus.

This position serves as a technical resource and mentor for other project consultants and helps monitor day-to-day activities on all active projects; as such, for strong interpersonal skills, the ability to coordinate and collaborate with others, and top notch project management skills are important.

Our client is located in the Boston area and is known for an employee oriented culture and excellent service standards. They are known for developing careers and providing ongoing training opportunities.
